Data driven methods have long been used in Automatic Speech Recognition ASR and Text To Speech TTS synthesis and have more recently been introduced for dialogue management spoken language understanding and Natural Language Generation Machine learning is now present end to end in Spoken Dialogue Systems SDS However these techniques require data collection and annotation campaigns which can be time consuming and expensive as well as dataset expansion From the Back Cover The EC FP7 project Computational Learning in Adaptive Systems for Spoken Conversation CLASSiC was a European initiative working on a fully data driven architecture for the development of conversational interfaces as well as
